

On Monday the 28th of February 2017 the College of the Transfiguration held its annual graduation ceremony, at the college campus. In attendance were the six graduates of the class of 2017 (two in absentia), as well as the Bishop of Grahamstown, Bishop Ebenezer Ntlali, the Rector at the College of the Transfiguration, Revd Dr V.R Kgabe, the Dean of the Cathedral of St Michael and St George, Dean Andrew and his wife Revd Claire Hunter, and the guest speaker, Archbishop Njongonkulu Ndungane, to mention a few esteemed guests. Family and friends of the graduates were also in attendance, as well as the rest of the COTT student body.

The guest speaker, Archbishop Ndungane, addressed the ailing political leadership in our country and urged the outgoing graduates to be strong in the face of moral and leadership bankruptcy. He urged the graduates to consider radical Christianity as a viable tool to conquer the numerous social ills in the country as well as within the Anglican Church itself. He drew a few examples of times in the past when brave priests directly confronted, and conquered against, challenges in their time and encouraged the graduates to do the same. We wish the graduates luck and will pray for them as they embark on their journey into ministering the word of Jesus Christ to their fellow Anglicans.
